

ALPINE MAP WITH 630 SKI RESORTS EDITION 4

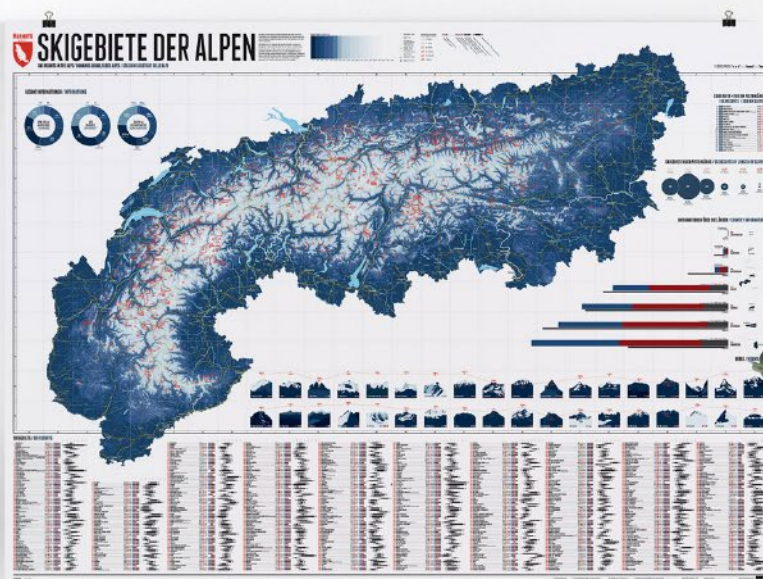

PRESS RELEASE
HAMBURG, 11-01-2017

The ski resorts of the Alps in your own living room. The fourth edition of the wall map by Marmota Maps has been released. It displays all 630 ski resorts in the entire Alpine area with a minimum combined slope length of five kilometers.

“We are more than happy that the new releases of our very first map continue to be so popular”, Stefan Spiegel says. “Since the release of the third edition, one year ago, a lot has changed in the Alps. Ski resorts have been merged or split. Some changed their names and there were also changes of some slopes. That’s why we have checked and updated all ski resort data in October 2017. This reduces the total number of ski resorts by three to 630.” Lana Bragina: „And we were also busy offside the slopes. For instance, the new edition also shows regional borders of the Alpine countries. And we have revised and reworked the waters, as well as the roads and passes.”

As in the previous editions all ski resorts are drawn in with their outer contours. With the data from skiresort.info for each of the 630 ski resorts, divided by difficulty, blue, red, and black slope kilometers are listed, as well as the minimum and maximum height of each resort.

Edition 4 of the map of the 630 ski resorts of the Alps has been released on 1st November. It costs 60 € and is available on www.marmotamaps.com and in selected shops.

MARMOTA MAPS - ABOUT US

Marmota Maps is a project by Lana Bragina and Stefan Spiegel in Hamburg, Germany. Both share a passion for geography, design, and the graphical presentation of data and information. Following a successful Kickstarter campaign in 2015 they published the first transnational map of the entire Alps with all ski resorts on it. With over 2,000 maps sold, they are constantly developing new creative design ideas and products. Because of their love for the mountains, the focus of Marmota Maps lies primarily in the Alpine region. But the start-up is also exploring other topics and regions.
